

Hi guys,

I'm headed back into the studio next week to begin work on my 5th album. I will once again be recording at Big Red Studio in Corbett Oregon and have asked Billy Oskay to help me record this next session working toward a balance of getting that perfect close sound of the studio with the freedom I feel while performing live. He and his assistant Jim Cuda spent 6 hours last night designing a system that does just that.

We have everything in place to begin recording and are only lacking one element... you. I need 10 -15 people who love the music I'm producing to come and aid with a listening ear. This will greatly enhance my inspiration which will yield a truer and richer performance.

So if you will be in the Portland area on the evening of Wednesday the 19th, yes that's in 3 short days, and want to experience a recording session in a world class studio, send me an email for an official invite. Seating is limited to 15. Those who enjoy sitting on the floor are encouraged to bring meditation cushions. Think candles, incense, flowers and tea.

I will try to make this a magical event but ask you to keep in mind that it will differ from a typical concert in two ways. One is that the recording gets highest priority. This means we may stop a song and make adjustments to the sound. The other is that I am asking you to bring your healing spiritual presence of support to become an active participant in the creative process.

Thanks for reading.

Blessings of love and peace to you,

jimmy
